The secrecy of your invention and the details of your patent are important to us. While we prefer to communicate with you via email, for ease and speed, we are also aware that many clients prefer to communicate by other, possibly more secure but more expensive means. As such, please let us know the way you would prefer that we communicate with you, send you drafts of your claims and specification, and so forth. Note that phone calls to and from QP are recorded for quality assurance and training purposes, and that by using our services you agree to these terms. Please list any other relevant details regarding patenting of this invention. You have the obligation to the US Patent & Trademark Office to fully disclose any non-patented prior art. Also, if you sold or offered the invention for sale more than one year ago, your patent rights may be reduced. Please provide any information that may limit your patent rights or otherwise affect the strength of the application.

Notice and Terms: In order to qualify for patent protection in the U.S., your invention must be new, useful, and non-obvious in light of all other prior art inventions. If it would be obvious to "one skilled in the art" or field of your invention, you may not ultimately receive a patent. Please be sure you understand the level of novelty of your device before assuming that merely by applying for a patent you will receive one. Patent Searches, if done through us or elsewhere, are never 100% complete, so there is always some risk that a patent search will have missed a relevant reference. Further, a patent application in the U.S. must be filed no later than one year after the invention is first used in public, offered for sale, or described in a printed publication. "File as early as possible" is usually good advice. Unless a U.S. patent is filed before public disclosure, you may be precluded from later filing a foreign patent. Each country has its own patent laws and filing requirements. You should make us aware of any potential public use or offer for sale of your invention beforehand so we can advise you as to the potential ramifications of public disclosure. There is no guarantee that paying us to submit a patent application on your behalf will result in a patent being granted. The cost of the application does not include costs associated with responding to PTO office actions, issue fees, maintenance fees, and the like. Refunds will not be granted for services already rendered. Further, we strive to ensure the secrecy of our clients' proprietary information. Therefore, you agree that if you inadvertently receive from us any information meant for another client, you will maintain the secrecy of that information and will immediately delete or otherwise destroy such information. PTO filing fees can be raised without notice, so you agree that you will pay any additional amounts owed if the PTO raises filing fees before we have filed your application.

I have read the above and agree, and am including payment. Please prepare the above patent application.
