

Patent Application Review Service

Let us conduct a professional review of your self-written patent application. One of our Registered Patent Practitioners will review your application and provide feedback as to any deficiencies or issues found, such as antecedent basis problems, enablement issues, discrepancies between the drawings and specification, thoroughness, as well as standard spelling and grammatical reviews.

Quick Patents (QP) promises that all information provided by our clients will be treated as confidential material; i.e., no part of said information will be used for any purpose whatsoever outside of the intended purpose of conducting application services for the client. QP will neither use nor cause others to use, nor divulge to third parties un-affiliated with QP, all or any part of said information, in any way, without your express written approval. For a signed Non-Disclosure agreement, go to <http://www.quickpatents.com/nda> before completing this form.

Title of the Invention: _____

If this is a Provisional Application, has it been filed yet, and if so, when? _____

What date did you first publicly disclose the invention or offer it for sale? _____

Or N/A (the invention is still a secret, other than those under a Non-Disclosure Agreement or otherwise sworn to secrecy)

Note that in order to obtain a patent in the United States, you cannot have publicly disclosed the product for more than one year prior to your filing date. We ask this question to ensure there is enough time to review your application before your one-year anniversary of your first public disclosure (i.e., your first offer for sale, or public marketing effort, or trade show disclosure, public use, etc.). In many foreign countries, you will lose your foreign filing rights if you publicly disclose your idea before filing a patent application.

COMMUNICATION

E-mail (default):

Fax:

Priority Mail:

Overnight (RUSH):

The secrecy of your invention and the details of your patent are important to us. While we prefer to communicate with you via email, for ease and speed, we are also aware that some clients prefer to communicate by other, possibly more secure but more expensive means. As such, please let us know the way you would prefer that we communicate with you, send you drafts of your claims and specification, and so forth. Note that phone calls to and from QP may be recorded, and that by using our services you agree to these terms. We are not responsible for your failure to receive our email communications, and it is up to you to add quickpatents.com as a trusted sender in your email client. Further, we strive to ensure the secrecy of our clients' proprietary information. Therefore, you agree that if you inadvertently receive from us any information meant for another client or party, you will maintain the secrecy of that information and will immediately delete or otherwise destroy such information and inform us immediately of the possible error.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT?

Once we receive this completed request form, and all related drawings, photos, and other requested information, we should have everything we need to get started on your review. Once we finish the patent search, if you ordered one, we'll send you the patent search report with our opinion as to what it means for you and the patentability of your product. Then, provided we have all of the required details that we need to do the review, we'll conduct our review and issue a report as to the adequacy of your proposed application and drawings.

Additional Terms: This review does not create an attorney/client relationship, but is rather our review of your work that you take responsibility for. We can make suggestions to you based on our professional experience, but if you're writing and filing your own application and drawings, you take full responsibility for the content thereof. Further, our review does not include an opinion of patentability unless it is ordered with a patentability search. Your invention must be novel and non-obvious to "one skilled in the art" or field of your invention before the PTO will grant your patent. Please be sure you understand the level of novelty of your device before assuming that merely by applying for a patent you will receive one. Patent Searches, if done through us or elsewhere, are never 100% complete, so there is always some risk that a patent search will have missed a relevant reference. Each country has its own patent laws and filing requirements. You should make us aware of any potential public use or offer for sale of your invention beforehand so we can advise you as to the potential ramifications of public disclosure. There is no guarantee that paying us to review a patent application on your behalf will result in a patent being granted. Refunds will not be granted for services already rendered. PTO fees can be raised without notice, so you agree that you will pay any additional amounts owed if the PTO raises filing fees before we have filed your application. Fees deemed earned when received.

I am authorizing payment of the fees above for the services listed above. The information above is true and complete to the best of my knowledge and I agree with the above statement.
